What's New at Creative Commons

Webcast Chat Log

Recorded webcast available here.

00:00 - Paul Stacey Creative Commons
Great to see some familiar names in the participants and welcome those I've not met yet. Looking forward to this session.

00:11 - Cali Morrison (WCET)
For those of you Tweeters out there we're using #wcetwebcast

05:43 - Cali Morrison (WCET)
#openeducationwk is a great hashtag to follow this week too, if you're not already!

05:50 - Megan Raymond, WCET
If you are just joining- Slides can be accessed here:

06:50 - Megan Raymond, WCET
https://stateof.creativecommons.org/

09:39 - Megan Raymond, WCET
http://profiles.open4us.org/taaccct/

13:07 - Megan Raymond, WCET
https://www.skillscommons.org/

16:12 - Megan Raymond, WCET
http://open.bccampus.ca/

19:56 - Megan Raymond, WCET
If you have any questions enter them here and we'll get to them as we go along.

20:30 - Megan Raymond, WCET
http://lumenlearning.com/success-story-tidewater/
FYI in Canada we are pursuing a similar approach in sharing K-12 resources using a pan-Canadian English resource sharing strategy. We are encouraging that those providing these resources in a shared repository to be CC licensed.

Other questions for Paul? Please enter them in the chat room!

Has there been growing interest among faculty in the ADAPT option? You said that BCcampus was helping with local adaptations (in the Canadian context)...could you give some examples?

ChemWiki - great idea. Is the proposed content (whether from student or faculty) shown as tentative until someone approves?

If you have any questions that we don't get to before we conclude I'll share with Paul and get written responses back to you along with a link to the archive.
http://wiki.ubc.ca/Science:Math_Exam_Resources

58:15 - Megan Raymond, WCET
https://www.oercommons.org/

58:59 - Randy LaBonte (CANeLearn.net)
As always, Paul, great session!

59:03 - Randy LaBonte (CANeLearn.net)
Thanks...

59:11 - Russ Poulin, WCET
Great work by CC!! Thanks Paul.

59:22 - Megan Raymond, WCET
http://wcet.wiche.edu/connect