Dear Members of the Department of Learning Design,

Congratulations on winning the 2011 WICHE Cooperative for Educational Technologies Outstanding Work Award. Regis University is fortunate to have teams like the Department of Learning Design creating award-winning programs, such as the "Passport to Course Development" online performance support system. This recognition speaks to your hard work and dedication to making education accessible and interactive.

As a former DPS superintendent, I understand how much difference the right tools can make for students, whatever the educational environment. Your ability to identify effective learning components, especially ones that can be replicated by others, is helping to evolve Colorado's higher education system into one that prepares our graduates for a 21st century economy. Professionals like you, Jane, Ling and Sally, have helped make the Regis University College for Professional Studies a shining example of educational innovation.

Colorado is proud to have people like you dedicated to making a positive impact in education. Thank you for your exceptional service.

Sincerely,
